Randy Bergdorf and Ed Pullekins attended a meeting regarding rubbish hauling. Boston Township is far ahead of other communities. It was suggested that the communities should work together to keep cost down on rubbish hauling.

Randy Bergdorf was upset at an article in the Beacon Journal stating that the township hall was not accessible to the handicap and they were denied the right to vote. Randy Bergdorf stated that the booth workers would go out to the cars to help the handicap vote, so the Beacon Journal retracted the statement.

On September 5, 1991 the City of Tallmadge held a meeting on water. They felt a regional study would be the best solution instead of each community paying. Approximate cost would be $1 to $3 per resident.

Joe Broderick asked about Oak Hill Grants - Randy Bergdorf said he had no response as of yet.

Joe Broderick attended the police meeting, they were happy with how the Grateful Dead fans handled themselves.
